UNC's Morehead Planetarium & Science Center, Department of Philosophy, and Parr Center for Ethics are pleased to invite educators to participate in the inaugural session of Educational Ethics in Pandemic Times.

This event will provide opportunities for educators:

- to reflect on ethical tensions and dilemmas that arise in the context of educational practice, especially issues related to science education and the ongoing pandemic.
- to be equipped with a conceptual toolkit that will enable them to effectively think through and respond to ethical dilemmas and policy disagreements within our schools.
- to deliberate alongside fellow educators, across lines of division and disagreement, in an empathic and collaborative way.

Participating educators will receive a Morehead swag bag, science supply box, discounted field trip coupon, and boxed lunch to go!
